DISCOVER PALAZZO TUFARELLI

HISTORY OF PALAZZO TUFARELLI

---

Palazzo Tufarelli is located on one of the most important historical and artistic sites of Naples. Entrance gate presents an old-style courtyard with all the front balconies leaning on Decumano Inferiore dubbed "Spaccanapoli", formerly Via Trinità Maggiore, Via Benedetto Croce today. The lofty second floor, magnificent Neapolitan Historic Home, turned into Santa Chiara Boutique Hotel, was existing before 1754.

Here are some excerpts from original textbooks about Palazzo Tufarelli storyline.

GINO D'ORIA "LE STRADE DI NAPOLI"

"The Tufarellis"

The influence of Tufarelli family is recognizable by the front gate's coat of arms, formed by a scroll-shaped shield, overlapped with a five-point crown. Originally from Calabria, the Tufarellis moved to Naples in 17th century, settling mainly in out-of-the-city areas, especially San Giorgio a Cremano town, where they built a villa that extended its name to the facing street. King Victor Emmanuel III dubbed them "Counts" in 1927 for special services to the Crown.

According to some sources, Palazzo Tufarelli was probably one unique block with Palazzo Venezia, owned by Capone family, proof could be an official property deed from Republic of Venice stating the east side of the building was IVXTA VIRIDARIVM MONASTERI SANCTI DOMINICI (next to San Domenico's Monastery). It shouldn't be referred to the building, although there's a statement in the letter the consul sent to Doge quoting: [The Vicaria Courts was surely located into the other building on Via Trinità Maggiore number 22, belonging to Esquire Goffredo Tomacelli since 1412.]

FAUSTO NICCOLINI, in "Napoli Nobilissima" 1921, vol. XVII, pag. 123

Da Gino D'oria "Le strade di Napoli", pag. 93

DA ITALO FERRARO “NAPOLI ATLANTE DELLA CITTÀ STORICA-CENTRO ANTICO” CLEAN EDIZIONI

“...Palazzo Tufarelli

In 1419 it was Chief Judge’s Main Office, hence the building was one hundred years old already, considering that ownership belonged to Tomacelli family and previously to Origlia.

In the 17th century, it belonged first to Cavalieri della Luna and Don Domenico Fiorillo later. Right after 1727 ownership switched to Sambiasè family, only in 1754 the news was it went under renovation. According to G. D’Oria, “third and fourth floor construction hasn’t been completed yet, thus the building presents itself as an open structure, with an unpredictable future”.

Staircase was built after the aforementioned date though, as wide as the courtyard, starting from the porch. The courtyard-staircase-porch pattern indicates a sort of order if compared to the building lot, whereas space in the backyard barely adapts...”
